Responsibilities

The seller is responsible for the object of sale until the handover has taken place. The seller confirms through this sales contract that she has the rightful ownership of the object of sale and that it has not been acquired through illegal/criminal acts, including but not limited to theft, and is free from encumbrances, including but not limited to sales pledges.

Complaint

The buyer has the right to cancel the purchase and be refunded the amount for the item excluding shipping if one or more of the following conditions are present:

- The object does not correspond to the information provided by the seller.
- The seller has withheld information about the object that he should have known.
- The object is in a significantly worse condition than the buyer had reason to expect.

The buyer loses his right to a complaint if he does not send a complaint to the seller within a reasonable time and describe the defect.

In the event of a return/complaint, the buyer must pay shipping costs.

Other

This agreement is binding and cannot be changed without agreement from both parties. Disputes regarding this agreement are tried before the Norwegian judiciary. The agreement and all matters surrounding it are regulated in accordance with Norwegian legislation. The purchase contract is completed in 2 copies, one for the seller and one for the buyer.
